The buffing wheel on the left is concentric sewn, best used on the left for the coarse compound. The buffing wheel on the right is loose, and works well for the final glaze - even on black!

Baldor makes the best buffing motors. The 3/4 H.P. motor is very powerful, and we can't even slow down the 1/4 H.P. motor with a normal plastic phone part! The base makes a lot of sense, and gives you 3 shelves to store the compound or parts. It leaves the area under the buffing wheels free for your work. Make sure you mount it to the floor, or it will walk all over! You should either build a little room (above) to keep the mess in one place, or get a Dust Collector (vacuum) which attaches to a shield around the wheels.
